RE: ALOUD Forum – March 13, 2008

I would like to share information on two projects and receive some feedback:

1. International fundraising and development. We have developed a webpage, pamphlet, alumni groups and a video and formed a senior level International Program Executive Development Council to facilitate fundraising for four international initiatives. Are there other strategies we should consider?
2. International Center. We have visited numerous international centers in various countries and compiled an inventory of their features. The Chancellor has created an ad hoc committee to consider the feasibility of establishing an international center on the UC Davis campus. The committee chaired by the Vice Provost of University Outreach and International Programs consists of four other Vice Provost/Vice Chancellors and four deans. An inventory of the possible components and occupants of such a center has been compiled. Do any APRU campuses have an international center? What issues should UC Davis consider in moving forward on this project?

Sincerely,

William B. Lacy
