The University of Sydney International Projects Development Fund

Professor John Hearn, Deputy Vice-Chancellor (International)
The University of Sydney

We have funded 50 seed projects to support research between the University of Sydney and partner universities around the world. Partners include those in the Asia Pacific Rim Universities, other networks and in bilateral agreements with leading universities who are not members of international networks. The projects are selected from university-wide applications according to criteria of quality, impact and sustainability in the research and in its funding support.
