

Todai Sustainable Campus Initiatives

Abstract

University campus could be regarded as the epitome of cities. In that sense, if we further pursue campus sustainability, we can expand it to local, national, and to global scales. Recognizing its unique leadership roles in bringing leaders of sustainability in the next generation, student-involved activities for campus sustainability will provide, in fact, practical sustainability education to students. As efforts to achieve a more sustainable campus at Todai continues, we would like to introduce some of our recent efforts in promoting proactive, environmentally responsible practices throughout all campus activities.

By University of Tokyo